

Ms. MARÍA SICILIA SALVADORES

Bachelor in Law from the Universidad Complutense and in Business Administration from the Universidad San Pablo-CEU, a Master's degree in Public Policy and Economics from the National Institute of Public Administration/ENA and the London School of Economics and Political Science (LSE) respectively, and executive education from Harvard Business School.

She has worked at Iberdrola Renovables as head of regulatory foresight in 23 countries and as Deputy Director General of Energy Planning for the Spanish Government.

She is currently Director of Strategy and Planning at Enagás, a global gas infrastructure company listed on the IBEX35, and is also an Independent Director of Soltec Power Holdings, and a Proprietary Director of the French company DualMetha, representing Enagás Emprende (a subsidiary of Enagás S.A.).